DEMOCRACY NOT A FAILURE

Every now and again we hear men say that democracy is a failure. The same opinion is from time to time expressed in some newspaper or magazine.

Democracy is, as a rule, slow moving and at times disappointing, but take it all in all it is the best and most progressive system of government yet evolved by man. It has the claims of those who believe in a dictatorship.

One vital difference between a democracy and a dictatorship form of government is that in a dictatorship, the great mass of the people, including the forgotten man, have an opportunity to register their views.

Under a dictatorship of the will of the masses is bent to that of the power to be. There can be no real progress, for the will of the masses is necessary to social and intellectual development.

Russia had a dictatorship for centuries, and what was the result? Prior to the Great War 80 per cent were totally illiterate.

Cromwell, to all intents and purposes, was a dictator. He ruled Britain with an iron hand. He tried to make the people of Britain free by fiat of law. When he passed off the scene, history told us that the people again went to extremes the other way and an orgy of debauchery followed which has never been equaled in the Old Land.

Mao-tse-tung is pointed to as a man who has saved Italy. While he is a man of unquestionable ability as a source, do advocates of a dictatorship ever visualize what may happen when Italy under the rule of a dictator, history repeats, it is quite possible that Italy will be torn under by the civil fight between the various groups desiring power.

Britain has made the greatest progress under democracy. The component parts of the Empire have been reasonably well governed under democratic forms of government. Why then all this talk of a one-man government? Such a doctrine is as a famous British statesman once observed, "the doctrine of tyrants and the creed of slaves." It is the loss of liberty and the loss of the faith in themselves, in the genius, integrity and unselfishness of the people.

Through their democratic system of government the people of the British Empire registered their real reality in a national election. This they did with an uncertainty that no other was that vote—which can be interpreted as a protest against conditions that the incoming government did not treat it lightly. In a word, the majority of the voters of the Empire gave general direction as to what they expect. This direction has not come from the top, but from the bottom. It is democracy functioning.

A dictatorship form of government can seem to function, but there can be no general development under it on the part of the masses. The people, and it is the level attained by the great common people of a nation that marks the high mark of its civilization.

It looks at this writing that this old Dominion will continue to plod along as a democracy.

SOCIETY AN ORGANISM

The Tribune has from time to time contended that society is an organism and should be given intelligent direction.

It was gratifying to hear the speakers at the teachers' banquet discuss the various subjects from this angle.

Mr. J. Steele-Smith, in his short address on Education, took this angle. He said that the teacher's job was to instruct in the handling of his subject. "Javali Delinquency," as was also Father Canningham's term—was the "Teaching of Religion in Schools." In fact all the speakers discussed the various subjects from this constructive line.

Consciously or unconsciously, every speaker considered society an organism instead of some dead thing that happened. An organism that needs definite direction.

Too long we have floated around in the atmosphere; too long we have been guilty of using the same phrases in our endeavor to find a way out of the dilemma in which we find ourselves. More essential work has to be done. What is needed is specific and concrete things.

It is most encouraging to see leaders in our community getting down to use a printer's ink and discuss and tackling problems at the base.

EDITORIAL NOTES

According to the latest dispatches, Franklin Delano Roosevelt defeated President Hoover by over 5,000,000 votes. It would appear that the United States is now in a state of confusion and that the people are in a state of confusion.

In the recent German election Hitler was elected Chancellor.

"Come round here, dear, and see if I'm fixed up all right at the back."

—The Humorous, London.

Not many seats. Those who have been watching events in Germany will naturally ask has the star of this shining young soldier, who seemed to come from nowhere to become one of the most powerful men in Germany, begun to set?

Up to the present there is no indication that Hitler will have a rocky time this winter. It will be a long cold winter without it being punctuated with a few dashes of Canada's premier winter sport.

A CONSONANT OVERTOPS

THE VOWELS

Time was when the letter A, B, C, known as the vowels, were in our language, were more than any other letter in our alphabet.

For the past two years the consonant "V" has had the call. Reader, I have understood that it is the first letter in the word depression.

The writer of this column has been thinking that it would be good to print on some good cardboard a list of the vowels. It would be a good idea to print on some good cardboard a list of the vowels. It would be a good idea to print on some good cardboard a list of the vowels.

As it looks at this writing, unless something unforeseen happens quickly to improve conditions, the letter "V" will occupy the premier position among the letters of our alphabet for some time.

STILL A GOOD GIFT

We are in receipt of a letter from our old friend, John Ferguson, father of Mrs. Cecil Bell, dated from Leduc, Nova Scotia, enclosing sub.

Our old friend had it perfectly clear in his letter that he is still in there. In fact, he is of the opinion that the depression will not be raised from the fair land of our old friend Mackenzie King and his party go back to power.

After saying some very complimentary things about The Tribune, Mr. Ferguson closed with the following: "Well, here's luck to you and your paper." For all which we thank our old friend kindly.

To the Editor

THE EDITOR OF THE TRIBUNE.

Sir: A thrill of horror passed through hundreds of thoughtful people as they read the startling revelations regarding humbug, made by one of our suffering High School students.

Because of the urgency of this situation an immediate investigation was made into the matter. The result was that the committee's plain-chalked hand has made a still more soul-shaking discovery.

During this tour of inspection of the school building on Tuesday last he was attracted by a thread of light which glimmered faintly from beneath the door.

This clue he found a circle of teachers. Their faces which were usually carefree, were now distorted by expressions of such frenzied cunning that they seemed to be of another world.

They were scarcely recognizable. As his gaze wandered fascinated, from one face to another, he saw that each face was marked with horror.

"We can torture them—but they must not be pushed to the breaking point... yet," hissed one tight-lipped man.

"No, I suppose not," muttered another grudgingly, "but I still maintain that we are being deceived."

"It is November and they are doing only five hours a night."

The crowd was disappointed when the referee announced that the fight between Webb, who was billed to defend his title, and the challenger did not appear. In order not to disappoint the crowd, the Fightmaster and one of his war-time sweethearts, he held a good one on how Mr. H. H. Watcher in his soldiering days held an English train with a corkscrew.

Mr. Lockyer told a story of four British "Tommy" listening in at hand corner in a London park while on leave. Says one, "That Operatic Echoes the fact that the Tommy 'Tommy' didn't argue and gave his opinion that it was a 'sensible' man."

The third thought it was a "sensible" to "Tannhauser." The fourth Tommy wasn't going to make up an opportunity to show his own musical judgment and disagreed entirely with the opinion of all his buddies, so he went over to find out. He came back quite white and declared that they were all wrong and he had known it all along. He had seen the name of the banding, and it sure enough was "Tannhauser."

FALLS AND INJURES ANKLE

While skating last week Curtis Nelson had the misfortune of falling and injuring his ankle. X-ray examination of it was found that a small bone was broken, which necessitates him moving about on crutches for a couple of weeks.

PRES LE BRUN and WIFE

NEW FRENCH LINER LARGEST VESSEL AFLOAT

With heads of the finest champagne of France trickling down her gigantic steel bow, where Mrs. Paul Le Brun, wife of the French president, had cracked a bottle of sunshine, the new pride of the French mercantile marine, "Normandie," slid down the ways at the historic Penhoët shipyard, in St. Nazaire, to bring to France the honor of owning the largest vessel in the world. It is interesting to compare the size of the new mercantile marvel with that of the Majestic and Leviathan. The Normandie, besides being 105 feet longer than the Majestic, has a gross tonnage of 73,000 as compared to the latter's 56,000, while the French vessel out-reaches the Leviathan by 115 feet. Owing to its recent change in the tonnage of the American liner, Leviathan, she falls far short of the records for comparison. The landlubber may gain a good idea of the size of the new ship's 1,928-foot length when it is pointed out that the Normandie would reach to within a respectable distance of the top of the Empire State Building in New York, which measures 1,248 feet from base to crown. The Normandie will go into commission early in the spring of 1934 on the Havre-New York run.

THAT RAINY DAY

Throughout your life you have been careless with your money, spending as you made it without much thought. You have made little effort to accumulate a fund to take care of the inevitable rainy day when you reach the unproductive years.

Rather than deny yourself to save you have affiliated with certain organizations which provide homes for their indigent members. You have made such connection with the feeling that when you are old the organizations, one or the other, will take care of you.

The majority being cared for in these institutions are persons who have suffered afflictions of one kind or another through life and whose incomes were never large. In such circumstances needy members have a just claim.

But will your claim be a worthy one? With the income you have had, it ought to have been possible for you to save enough to take care of yourself in old age.

But instead are you not planning to let your order assume the burden which you ought to have undertaken, and might have accomplished if you had been more sensible?

Made $175,000 Shining Shoes

Ferd, Italian boy, landed at the Battery 76 years ago at the age of 14, with just enough money to buy a shoe-shining outfit. In due time he came to have the shoe-shining concession at the Grand Central station, and when he died, recently, he left $175,000 all made in shining shoes. It is said he could stroll into almost any shoe-shining station in New York state and get his shoes shined for nothing, which gave him the edge on visiting kings and even the hero of the charge on Anacostis.

10,000 False Fire Alarms Annually

It seems as if there could not possibly be that many even in the great city of New York, but there are 28 false fire-alarm calls per day, and that figures up 10,000 in a year. The cost of each false fire-alarm is set at about $20; a clear waste of $200,000 a year.
